01	An older man sits at the bus stop. Sometimes he's waiting for the bus, and sometimes he's just taking a break on his walk. The wide bike path keeps him away from the traffic. Morning, noon
02	To get across, he has to cross a busy road with heavy traffic, because it leads to the border crossing. Most drivers let him through, but it still feels unsafe. Morning
03	He takes his grandchild to the park. He sits in the shade under a tree and watches him play. Noon, Afternoon
04	A side path between the houses lets him walk safely with his grandchild on the way to the park. Noon, Afternoon
05	He sits with his wife in a small park by the border, enjoying the fresh air with drinks from the park kiosk. The open, flat grass makes it easy to bring chairs out. Evening

06	The sidewalk along the race track gets narrow. Bushes grow over the fence and push him toward the road. Morning, noon
07	On race days he goes up to the grandstand. He sits a few seats away from the others and watches the horses go by. It's one of the few places where he's around other people besides those in his care home. Afternoon, Evening, Night
08	He stops at the memorial in the strip park. The paved path takes him straight up to it, and he stands there for a while, remembering. Morning
09	He walks to the social services centre. The building is closed off by tall fences, so he follows the sidewalk along them until he reaches the gate. Morning, Noon
10	He has his coffee on the front terrace of the senior home where he lives. A low wall and a gate keep the street out, so he can sit outside, watch people go by, and still feel safe. Morning, Afternoon
